Poster 16: Education
A Newly Formed University Center of InterProfessional Education: Programs and Lessons Learned

Saturday, March 13, 2010

Molly Rose, Thomas Jefferson University, Pennsylvania;
Christine Arenson, Thomas Jefferson University, Pennsylvania;
Reena Antony, Thomas Jefferson University, Pennsylvania;
Catherine Mills, Thomas Jefferson University, Pennsylvania

A new Center for Interprofessional Education was implemented two years ago at a Northeastern United States health science university. This discussion allows participants to walk through the actual planning, implementation and evaluation activities of a newly developed IPE Center. Topics are 1. IPE center proposal – development of the mission and objectives 2. Planning for implementation of center activities/programs – needs assessment, development of steering committee of faculty and hospital representatives, website development, Program Administrator role, Administrative Assistant role; 3. Implementation of IPE curricula and activities with examples of projects. 4. Immediate/longitudinal evaluation strategies and lesson learned.