2017 James B. Erdmann, PhD Student Award for Excellence in Interprofessional Education and Collaborative Practice

What is the James B. Erdmann, PhD Student Award for Excellence in Interprofessional Education (IPE) and Collaborative Practice (CP)?
This award honors four students from the Jefferson community who demonstrate excellence in the support of interprofessional education and collaborative practice and whose efforts have resulted in sustained impact on interprofessional collaboration to improve the education of Jefferson students.

Criteria for Excellence in IPE and CP award (applicant must meet at least 3 of 4 criteria):

- Assumes a leadership role in programmatic or research activities with or about learners of two or more professions simultaneously to foster a climate of mutual respect and shared values (Values/Ethics for Interprofessional Practice)
- Plays a leadership role in programmatic or research activities that encourage students to use knowledge of their own roles and those of other professions to appropriately assess and address the health care needs of patients/clients and to promote and advance the health of populations (Roles/Responsibilities)
- Promotes student communication with peers and professionals in health and other fields in a respectful and responsive manner that supports a team approach (Interprofessional Communication)
- Applies and advances training in the principles of team dynamics and relationship-building values to effectively perform in different team roles to develop programmatic and research activities and deliver patient/population-centered care in future practice (Teams and Teamwork)

Nominations:
Each profession is invited to nominate one student based on his/her contributions to interprofessional education and collaboration. Names of nominees must be submitted by the appropriate college dean. Final award decisions will be made by the JCIPE team and the award Selection Committee.

What is the deadline date for nomination?
Names of nominees must be received by Friday, February 17, 2017.

When will the award be presented?
The awards will be presented at each recipient’s college award ceremony. Each awardee receives an engraved plaque and a monetary award.

How to submit nominations:
Email the names of nominees to Catherine Mills at catherine.mills@jefferson.edu.
