National Organization of Minority Architecture Students (NOMAS)

The National Organization of Minority Architecture Students (NOMAS) provides educational and networking opportunities for minority architecture students. Members work together to define solutions that will ensure a healthy living and working environment for the whole community. At the NOMAS Conference, architects, designers, professionals, and students connect and share industry knowledge.

Law & Society Honor Society

The Law & Society Honor Society inducts students who demonstrate campus leadership qualities and earn exceptional grades. The purpose is to foster well-rounded students who want to play a more active role in the world. The organization hosts an LSAT tutoring program for prospective law school candidates.

Dressembler Club

Dressembler is an organization that advocates utilizing fashion and creativity to help end human trafficking. Members of this organization engage in intervention work by partnering with local organizers to remove child victims of trafficking from situations and provide support and exit pathways for trafficked adults.

HerCampus

HerCampus is the #1 online magazine for college women nationwide. Jefferson's HerCampus chapter offers its campus a unique experience through localized editorial content, social media channels, events, and more. Members focus on building a sense of community among college women.

Queer Student Union

The Queer Student Union aims to make the LGBTQ+ community feel welcome on Jefferson's campus. The organization hosts school-wide activities and events throughout the semester that are inclusive, educational, and fun for everyone.

Sigma Nu

Sigma Nu exists to develop ethical leaders inspired by the values of Love, Honor, and Truth. Members of the Mu Pi Chapter at Jefferson engage in community service, philanthropy, and personal development through events and partnerships with charities, student groups, and other community organizations.
